

Stroke Rehabilitation Program

Having a stroke can be one of life's most challenging events. Research conducted by the American Heart Association has found that stroke survivors who participate in an intense inpatient rehabilitation program achieve better outcomes.

At Peterson Health, our patients receive a focused, intense rehabilitation program aimed at addressing the complex and multiple life changes brought about by stroke. Our overall goal is to help the patient achieve their best functional outcome and return home.

In both the inpatient and outpatient settings, we offer a variety of programs and services which can be matched with the individual needs of the patient.
